WOMEN SETTLE CASE FOR SIX FIGURES BASED ON AGE DISCRIMINATION

Two women in their 60s settled an Age Discrimination Case in State Court New York when they were informed that they no longer projected the younger image of a well known consumer based Insurance Brokerage Company.

The two females had exemplary records with the company and never faced discipline or negative evaluations. A new manager wanted the company to have a younger and more modern façade in the hopes that younger customers would be attracted to the insurance company.

The Manager subjected the women to ongoing harassment, nit picking and false accusations regarding work performance. The women were told, like the phone system in the office, it was time to get rid of the old and bring in the new.

The women filed Age Discrimination claims with the New York State Division of Human Rights after they were fired without reasons.

Plaintiffs were represented by Philip Taubman of Taubman Kimelman & Soroka, LLP. One of the better known employment firms in New York. www.discriminationfighter.com
